

REMOTE WORKING POLICY

1. Context:

As a rapidly growing company that is focussed on hiring the most talented workforce to fuel its growth, Gamut understands that geographical constraints need to be addressed, in order to open up the talent pool and enable the company to hire the most appropriate individual for the role, without having to deal with challenges of location OR having to disturb the candidate's present living arrangements.

The Remote Work Policy is designed to deal with work arrangements and agreements with such individuals.

2. Eligibility

This policy is applicable to those employees who have been explicitly approved to work from a location where Gamut does not have an office, on a permanent basis or having work hours that do not lend themselves to working out of office. This is NOT applicable for existing employees who wish to relocate to their home town and/or work from home, unless specifically identified by the Management, to best serve the needs of the business.

3. Prerequisites

Such candidates are expected to have adequate infrastructure to provide a conducive work environment, namely:

- a) A quiet room free from distractions/noise
- b) Uninterrupted power /power back-up
- c) Good internet connection
- e) A mobile phone
- f) Laptop with headset & mouse and with specified configuration and security controls

Should infrastructure not be available on a given day, the candidate is expected to have alternative/back up arrangements e.g. a cyber cafe nearby. If back-up arrangements are unavailable, the candidate may be asked to mark himself on leave for that day.

4. Visits to Gamut's offices

Remote workers are expected to be able and willing to travel to Gamut's offices when required, to attend meetings, trainings conferences or any other such purposes.

Travel and accommodation costs will be borne by the company, as per company's travel policy.

If an employee is unable to travel for any reason, he must seek approval from his Manager. Repeated refusals may not be entertained and may lead to appropriate action.

5. Work Ethics

Remote workers are expected to demonstrate the highest level of work ethics. Remote work is a privilege- not an entitlement. The candidate is expected to have the discipline to start his work day at the appointed time and be available throughout the work day, barring a meal break of 30 minutes. In case of any urgent time-sensitive personal work, approval must be taken from the Manager and the time of non-availability specified. This must be an exception rather than a practice.

6. Data /Information security/ Safety of assets

The remote worker will be responsible for the safety of company data /information and company assets. Any damage to assets due to mis-handling/accident is recoverable from the employee. Any compromise of the security of company data will be dealt with in accordance with the laws of the land and the company's policies.

The employee must ensure that the company laptop is NOT used by any other member of the family and NEVER for personal use. Any loss of data integrity due to mal-ware caused by visits to inappropriate sites or playing games or downloading data is entirely the responsibility of the employee and will lead to disciplinary action.

The employee must ensure the company assets are stored appropriately, away from fire, water, electrical points, hot surfaces etc.

7. Revoking of the benefit

If the employee is unable to perform at optimum levels of productivity, in a Remote work arrangement, the Company reserves the right to revoke this benefit and request the employee to work out of a physical office of the company. Refusal /inability to do so, may lead to a mutual agreement on cessation of employment.

8. Exclusions

Even though the employee's home/remote location of work is considered his work-place until he is given the facility of remote-working, such facility will NOT be considered as 'Place of Work' under the legal definition for the purpose of Workmen's Compensation or Injuries/Accidents encountered while at home. This is because the company does not have the ability/authority to check such places for safety and compliance with health & safety requirements.

Shift Working

1. Context :

This policy outlines the need, eligibility and process of working in shifts, to address various business requirements.

2. Eligibility/Applicability

Shift working will be applicable for employees who work in specific roles or functions. These will be defined when business requirements demand shift working.

3. How this will work :

Eligible employees will be informed of this by their HOD well in advance. The shifts will either be in rotation or be fixed- this would be determined by business needs.

4. Facilities :

Employees will continue to get tea/coffee in all the shifts. They may bring their food, as they do in the day shift.

5. Special Allowance:

Employees working in the night shift will be paid a night shift allowance of Rs..... per night shift instance.

6. Exceptions :

If an employee is medically or otherwise unable to work in any shift, he must produce a medical certificate to this effect. The Management will review the certificate and take a decision, based on the merits of the case.

The Management also reserves the right to take a decision on continuation of employment, as shift working may be a pre-requisite to the position.

Flexible Working:

Employees are provided the flexibility to manage Work-life-integration by adopting flexible hours of work. The critical hours are from 11 am to 4 pm when EVERYONE must be logged in. The start time can be anywhere from 9 am to 11 am, and the end time can be stretched accordingly.

Employees must, on an average, work 8 hours a day, excluding their break time. The nature of work in a software company, may sometimes require late working (to resolve a critical customer issue or a bug), but these may be compensated by late coming/early going on another day, with the approval of the manager, and subject to business situation.

At all times, employees must be aware that Remote working and flexible hours of work are 'benefits' that are conferred, on the assumption that employees have the maturity, the work ethics and the integrity to abide by them whilst ensuring business interests are never compromised. Any abuse of this may be viewed seriously and may lead to disciplinary action including termination from service.

Some helpful pointers to enable one to be professional and efficient while working from home/flexi-hours :

- a) Always keep your camera on during calls and keep the background clear (but not blurred or with special effects). We need to be sure work is not coming in the way of you and a chilled beer :)
- b) Try and keep fixed hours of work so that you maintain some disciplinary and your family also understands your work requirements
- c) Always dress up even if you're at home. You will be surprised how your clothes can impact the way you think

d) Try and keep a corner of your house as your 'office space' - free of distractions and noise. The pressure cooker whistle is distracting during calls

e) We need you to be 'working' - so long hours away from your laptop, delay in answering calls (beyond reasonable limits) and not keeping the camera on etc. may lead to some difficult conversations.
